“ I have had the honor and privilege of calling Harry and Mary my good friends for the last 40 years. I have watched their children grow to adulthood, enjoyed many cross-country trips with them, and many, many meals at their home.
Harry was a modest man, yet he was accomplished in many things. In the final analysis, however, it is not what he did in life; it is how he lived his life. Harry lived his life for his God and his family.
I will miss his presence, his humor and wit. I extend my heartfelt condolences and sympathy to his entire family.
May he rest in peace.
